II-2 School Sport Eligibility: Fact Sheet

Sport Inclusion
AUSTRALIA

We Are Sport Inclusion Australia

Sport Inclusion Australia is a national sporting organisation established in 1986 to support the inclusion of people with an intellectual impairment – including intellectual disability and/or autism – into the mainstream community through sport. We are the national organisation responsible for processing eligibility applications for athletes with an intellectual impairment.

What is II-2 Eligibility?

Eligibility is the set of criteria used to determine whether an athlete with an intellectual disability and significant additional impairment meets the requirements to compete as an II-2 athlete in designated school sport events. To be eligible, the required evidence must be provided.

II-2 Intellectual Disability with Significant Additional Impairment

To be eligible under II-2, athletes must meet the II-1 eligibility requirement and provide additional evidence of significant additional impairment. This includes:

- II-1 Requirements
 - An IQ score of 75 or below
 - Evidence of limitations in adaptive behaviour
 - Onset before the age of 22
- Diagnosis of Down Syndrome (Trisomy 21 or Translocation) - blood test required OR FAST assessment (by a trained professional)
- Must not be symptomatic of Atlantoaxial Instability (AAI) - Xray required
- All documentation must be completed and signed by an appropriately qualified professional

To compete in designated events, eligibility criteria must be met to ensure fairness and maintain the integrity of competition.
